SEEKING INFORMATION

DETAILS

At approximately 12:35 am on May 12, 2014, a group of unidentified individuals were captured on video throwing incendiary devices known as "Molotov cocktails" at four separate apartments at the Ramona Gardens Housing Project, which is located in the Boyle Heights area in the city of Los Angeles, California.

Based on the video and other evidence, investigators believe there are multiple suspects responsible. A joint investigation by the Los Angeles Police Department; FBI; Los Angeles City Fire Department; and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives is ongoing.

REWARD

A reward is being offered for information that leads to the arrest and conviction of one or more members of the group responsible for this crime.
